

The Great Depression

Customers of US banks withdrew their money all at once due to the panic of the Crash of 29. The unemployment grew and the exports were reduced.

This caused Europe to be dragged into the Great Depression. No one was left out.

The measures taken by Roosevelt afterwards were:

- Investment in public works
- Subsidies for agriculture
- Improvements to the working conditions
- Reconstruction of the economic system

The London conference (1933) to fix the global problem didn't work.
